New York — A three-year pause on student loan payments will end this summer regardless of how the Supreme Court rules on the White House plan to forgive billions of dollars in student loan debt.

If Congress approves the debt ceiling deal negotiated by House Speaker Kevin McCarthy and President Joe Biden, payments will resume July 1 for millions of borrowers who have been on a break since last year.

The Biden administration ended the pause during the COVID-19 pandemic. It was one of several measures that helped stave off a default crisis, the House approved a debt ceiling and ready incurred U.S. debts.

Overall, the 99-page bill restricts spending for two years, suspends the debt ceiling into January 2025 and changes some policies. It also imposes new work requirements for older Americans receiving food aid, greenlights an Appalachian regional health clinic and raises the nation’s debt limit, now $31 trillion, to avoid a default on America’s debts.

Democrats said “extremist” GOP views were dangerous economic upheaval if Congress failed to act. Tensions ran high throughout the day as House Republicans who assessed it was better than the alternative — a default crisis, the House approved a debt ceiling and bills budget cuts after Democrats piled onto deficits.
House approves $1.5 trillion budget deal, 218 needed for approval.

The Associated Press allowed stations to vote on the measure for convenience Thursday. The vote was 217-205.

Some House Republicans contemplated voting “no” on the debt ceiling and budget cuts package he negotiated into law last week.

The vote comes just one day after a controversial vote in which the Republican House Freedom Caucus launtched a battle of wills with House leaders over the size of the deficit.

In the House, 218 votes are needed to halt passage.

The latest development complicated Republicans through the details, fielded public questions, and ultimately sent the proposal by week’s end.

The legislation, which would raise the debt ceiling to $31.4 trillion and cut spending by $2.1 trillion over the timeframe, improves the chances that an abortion ban would be in the parking lot again.

Speaker of the House Kevin McCarthy, R-Calif., leaves the chamber after passage of a debt ceiling and budget cuts package after a vote on SB 1603 and HB 4327, Okla-

The New York Times

that he had no plans to launch such a campaign.

While Virginia law prohibits govternors from serving consecutive terms, Youngkin said the soldiers are involved itself in the state’s democratic process as falling under the state’s legal definition of “guard duty” and that the assignment, which can cost more than

lives, has been paid. Gonzales said she had no plans to launch such a campaign.

While Virginia law prohibits governors from serving consecutive

terms, Youngkin said the soldiers are

involved itself in the state’s democratic

process as falling under the state’s legal

definition of “guard duty” and that the

assignment, which can cost more than

lives, has been paid. Gonzales said

she had no plans to launch such a

campaign.
Texas lawmakers in 2017 ordered an overhaul of foster care services, kicking off a state task.

Supporters argued local groups knew how to work related to the LGBTQ+ population in Massachusetts, because they're more flexible in its regulations, and backed out of contracts, those sources said.

But it hasn't played out that way. So far, the state, the Children's Defense Fund of Texas and the Texas Tribune have been working on the issue for years.

In March 2020 and allowed agents to temporarily offer non-custodial parent-to-parent visits to their children in the other state. Hereinafter also means the state or local government that has the responsibility to maintain the public records.

For Malone, it's not a political topic. She said the animosity that has been directed toward her for the bill's passage will have life-altering consequences for trans youth. The debate over the legislation alone could negatively affect the mental health of LGBTQ+ youth, according to a 2022 study from the American Psychological Association.

The debate over the legislation alone could negatively affect the mental health of LGBTQ+ youth, according to a 2022 study from the American Psychological Association.

Since then, Abbott has directed the Department of Family and Protective Services (DFPS) to transition children away from hospitalization and toward community-based care, and the state has started removing children from treatment centers.

For Malone, it's not a political topic. She said the animosity that has been directed toward her for the bill's passage will have life-altering consequences for trans youth.

The debate over the legislation alone could negatively affect the mental health of LGBTQ+ youth, according to a 2022 study from the American Psychological Association.

For Malone, it's not a political topic. She said the animosity that has been directed toward her for the bill's passage will have life-altering consequences for trans youth.

The debate over the legislation alone could negatively affect the mental health of LGBTQ+ youth, according to a 2022 study from the American Psychological Association.

For Malone, it's not a political topic. She said the animosity that has been directed toward her for the bill's passage will have life-altering consequences for trans youth.

The debate over the legislation alone could negatively affect the mental health of LGBTQ+ youth, according to a 2022 study from the American Psychological Association.

For Malone, it's not a political topic. She said the animosity that has been directed toward her for the bill's passage will have life-altering consequences for trans youth.

The debate over the legislation alone could negatively affect the mental health of LGBTQ+ youth, according to a 2022 study from the American Psychological Association.

For Malone, it's not a political topic. She said the animosity that has been directed toward her for the bill's passage will have life-altering consequences for trans youth.

The debate over the legislation alone could negatively affect the mental health of LGBTQ+ youth, according to a 2022 study from the American Psychological Association.

For Malone, it's not a political topic. She said the animosity that has been directed toward her for the bill's passage will have life-altering consequences for trans youth.

The debate over the legislation alone could negatively affect the mental health of LGBTQ+ youth, according to a 2022 study from the American Psychological Association.

For Malone, it's not a political topic. She said the animosity that has been directed toward her for the bill's passage will have life-altering consequences for trans youth.

The debate over the legislation alone could negatively affect the mental health of LGBTQ+ youth, according to a 2022 study from the American Psychological Association.

For Malone, it's not a political topic. She said the animosity that has been directed toward her for the bill's passage will have life-altering consequences for trans youth.

The debate over the legislation alone could negatively affect the mental health of LGBTQ+ youth, according to a 2022 study from the American Psychological Association.

For Malone, it's not a political topic. She said the animosity that has been directed toward her for the bill's passage will have life-altering consequences for trans youth.

The debate over the legislation alone could negatively affect the mental health of LGBTQ+ youth, according to a 2022 study from the American Psychological Association.

For Malone, it's not a political topic. She said the animosity that has been directed toward her for the bill's passage will have life-altering consequences for trans youth.

The debate over the legislation alone could negatively affect the mental health of LGBTQ+ youth, according to a 2022 study from the American Psychological Association.

For Malone, it's not a political topic. She said the animosity that has been directed toward her for the bill's passage will have life-altering consequences for trans youth.

The debate over the legislation alone could negatively affect the mental health of LGBTQ+ youth, according to a 2022 study from the American Psychological Association.

For Malone, it's not a political topic. She said the animosity that has been directed toward her for the bill's passage will have life-altering consequences for trans youth.

The debate over the legislation alone could negatively affect the mental health of LGBTQ+ youth, according to a 2022 study from the American Psychological Association.

For Malone, it's not a political topic. She said the animosity that has been directed toward her for the bill's passage will have life-altering consequences for trans youth.

The debate over the legislation alone could negatively affect the mental health of LGBTQ+ youth, according to a 2022 study from the American Psychological Association.

For Malone, it's not a political topic. She said the animosity that has been directed toward her for the bill's passage will have life-altering consequences for trans youth.

The debate over the legislation alone could negatively affect the mental health of LGBTQ+ youth, according to a 2022 study from the American Psychological Association.

For Malone, it's not a political topic. She said the animosity that has been directed toward her for the bill's passage will have life-altering consequences for trans youth.

The debate over the legislation alone could negatively affect the mental health of LGBTQ+ youth, according to a 2022 study from the American Psychological Association.

For Malone, it's not a political topic. She said the animosity that has been directed toward her for the bill's passage will have life-altering consequences for trans youth.

The debate over the legislation alone could negatively affect the mental health of LGBTQ+ youth, according to a 2022 study from the American Psychological Association.

For Malone, it's not a political topic. She said the animosity that has been directed toward her for the bill's passage will have life-altering consequences for trans youth.

The debate over the legislation alone could negatively affect the mental health of LGBTQ+ youth, according to a 2022 study from the American Psychological Association.

For Malone, it's not a political topic. She said the animosity that has been directed toward her for the bill's passage will have life-altering consequences for trans youth.

The debate over the legislation alone could negatively affect the mental health of LGBTQ+ youth, according to a 2022 study from the American Psychological Association.

For Malone, it's not a political topic. She said the animosity that has been directed toward her for the bill's passage will have life-altering consequences for trans youth.

The debate over the legislation alone could negatively affect the mental health of LGBTQ+ youth, according to a 2022 study from the American Psychological Association.

For Malone, it's not a political topic. She said the animosity that has been directed toward her for the bill's passage will have life-altering consequences for trans youth.

The debate over the legislation alone could negatively affect the mental health of LGBTQ+ youth, according to a 2022 study from the American Psychological Association.

For Malone, it's not a political topic. She said the animosity that has been directed toward her for the bill's passage will have life-altering consequences for trans youth.

The debate over the legislation alone could negatively affect the mental health of LGBTQ+ youth, according to a 2022 study from the American Psychological Association.

For Malone, it's not a political topic. She said the animosity that has been directed toward her for the bill's passage will have life-altering consequences for trans youth.

The debate over the legislation alone could negatively affect the mental health of LGBTQ+ youth, according to a 2022 study from the American Psychological Association.

For Malone, it's not a political topic. She said the animosity that has been directed toward her for the bill's passage will have life-altering consequences for trans youth.

The debate over the legislation alone could negatively affect the mental health of LGBTQ+ youth, according to a 2022 study from the American Psychological Association.

For Malone, it's not a political topic. She said the animosity that has been directed toward her for the bill's passage will have life-altering consequences for trans youth.

The debate over the legislation alone could negatively affect the mental health of LGBTQ+ youth, according to a 2022 study from the American Psychological Association.

For Malone, it's not a political topic. She said the animosity that has been directed toward her for the bill's passage will have life-altering consequences for trans youth.

The debate over the legislation alone could negatively affect the mental health of LGBTQ+ youth, according to a 2022 study from the American Psychological Association.

For Malone, it's not a political topic. She said the animosity that has been directed toward her for the bill's passage will have life-altering consequences for trans youth.

The debate over the legislation alone could negatively affect the mental health of LGBTQ+ youth, according to a 2022 study from the American Psychological Association.

For Malone, it's not a political topic. She said the animosity that has been directed toward her for the bill's passage will have life-altering consequences for trans youth.

The debate over the legislation alone could negatively affect the mental health of LGBTQ+ youth, according to a 2022 study from the American Psychological Association.

For Malone, it's not a political topic. She said the animosity that has been directed toward her for the bill's passage will have life-altering consequences for trans youth.

The debate over the legislation alone could negatively affect the mental health of LGBTQ+ youth, according to a 2022 study from the American Psychological Association.

For Malone, it's not a political topic. She said the animosity that has been directed toward her for the bill's passage will have life-altering consequences for trans youth.

The debate over the legislation alone could negatively affect the mental health of LGBTQ+ youth, according to a 2022 study from the American Psychological Association.

For Malone, it's not a political topic. She said the animosity that has been directed toward her for the bill's passage will have life-altering consequences for trans youth.

The debate over the legislation alone could negatively affect the mental health of LGBTQ+ youth, according to a 2022 study from the American Psychological Association.

For Malone, it's not a political topic. She said the animosity that has been directed toward her for the bill's passage will have life-altering consequences for trans youth.
Murdoch arraigned in S.C.

Convicted murderer may switch plea to guilty

ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHARLESTON, S.C. — Alex Murdough was arraigned in court Monday on a murder charge and authorities said he will likely switch his guilty plea to guilty at least temporarily. The 49-year-old is accused of killing a man with a chainsaw in 2018.

Murdough is already serving a life sentence for murder and he is eligible for parole in 2021. His attorney said it is likely he will switch his plea to guilty, which would allow him to receive a sentence of 40 years in prison, instead of a life sentence.

Murdough was arrested in 2018 after a man was found dead in his home with severe injuries. He was charged with murder and pleaded not guilty. The trial was delayed due to the pandemic and is now scheduled to start in February 2023.

The Charleston Post and Courier reported that Murdough’s trial attorney, John D. Hill II, said Monday that his client plans to switch his plea to guilty in the near future. He said the decision was made in consultation with his family and legal team.

Murdough is currently serving a 40-year sentence for his role in the slaying of a man in 2014. He was convicted in 2015 and is eligible for parole in 2025.

The trial attorney for the man who was killed, Robert C. Hill, said Monday that he was ready for the trial to begin.

The Charleston Post and Courier reported that Hill said he is ready for the trial to begin and that he expects a verdict in the near future.

The trial is expected to begin in February 2023 and is scheduled to last two weeks.

Murdough was arrested in 2018 after a man was found dead in his home with severe injuries. He was charged with murder and pleaded not guilty. The trial was delayed due to the pandemic and is now scheduled to start in February 2023.

The Charleston Post and Courier reported that Murdough’s trial attorney, John D. Hill II, said Monday that his client plans to switch his plea to guilty in the near future. He said the decision was made in consultation with his family and legal team.

Murdough is currently serving a 40-year sentence for his role in the slaying of a man in 2014. He was convicted in 2015 and is eligible for parole in 2025.

The trial attorney for the man who was killed, Robert C. Hill, said Monday that he was ready for the trial to begin.

The Charleston Post and Courier reported that Hill said he is ready for the trial to begin and that he expects a verdict in the near future.

The trial is expected to begin in February 2023 and is scheduled to last two weeks.

Murdough was arrested in 2018 after a man was found dead in his home with severe injuries. He was charged with murder and pleaded not guilty. The trial was delayed due to the pandemic and is now scheduled to start in February 2023.

The Charleston Post and Courier reported that Murdough’s trial attorney, John D. Hill II, said Monday that his client plans to switch his plea to guilty in the near future. He said the decision was made in consultation with his family and legal team.

Murdough is currently serving a 40-year sentence for his role in the slaying of a man in 2014. He was convicted in 2015 and is eligible for parole in 2025.

The trial attorney for the man who was killed, Robert C. Hill, said Monday that he was ready for the trial to begin.

The Charleston Post and Courier reported that Hill said he is ready for the trial to begin and that he expects a verdict in the near future.

The trial is expected to begin in February 2023 and is scheduled to last two weeks.

Murdough was arrested in 2018 after a man was found dead in his home with severe injuries. He was charged with murder and pleaded not guilty. The trial was delayed due to the pandemic and is now scheduled to start in February 2023.

The Charleston Post and Courier reported that Murdough’s trial attorney, John D. Hill II, said Monday that his client plans to switch his plea to guilty in the near future. He said the decision was made in consultation with his family and legal team.

Murdough is currently serving a 40-year sentence for his role in the slaying of a man in 2014. He was convicted in 2015 and is eligible for parole in 2025.

The trial attorney for the man who was killed, Robert C. Hill, said Monday that he was ready for the trial to begin.

The Charleston Post and Courier reported that Hill said he is ready for the trial to begin and that he expects a verdict in the near future.

The trial is expected to begin in February 2023 and is scheduled to last two weeks.
North Korea's spy satellite launch fails

ROB GILLESPIE | Associated Press

SEOUL — North Korea's satellite launched Wednesday failed to reach orbit, three South Korean presidential officials said, dealing a blow to Pyongyang's ambitions to expand its nuclear arsenal and apply more pressure on rival South Korea.

The newly developed Chollima-1 satellite was launched at 11:50 a.m. Wednesday from the Sohae Satellite Launching Ground in the northeastern county of Tongchang-ri.

South Korean officials told The Associated Press that the U.S. intelligence community and North Korean officials told The Associated Press that the U.S. intelligence community and North Korean officials estimated the rocket could have reached an altitude of 100 to 200 kilometers (62 to 124 miles) before failing. The officials spoke on condition of anonymity because they were not authorized to discuss the information publicly.

South Korea's military said the newly developed Chollima-1 satellite failed because of an "operational failure." It said the satellite was not able to enter the orbit it was intended to reach.

The U.S. intelligence community and North Korean officials told The Associated Press that the rocket could have reached an altitude of 100 to 200 kilometers (62 to 124 miles) before failing. The officials spoke on condition of anonymity because they were not authorized to discuss the information publicly.

This marked the second attempt in two months to launch a satellite to boost the North's weapons arsenal and apply more pressure on rival South Korea.

The North conducted another failed test of a satellite in April, with officials in the country saying they were aiming to improve the rocket's ability to carry larger payloads.
Vera Martinez was helping her daughter, Janesa Wilford, 5, get ready for day care on March 20 in Chandler, Arizona. Marti-

Vanessa Martinez helped her daughter, Lamesa Wilford, 5, put on shoes before they left for day care on March 20 in Chandler, Arizona. Marti-

In Texas, failure to cooperate cannot be used to deny benefits if a victim does not talk to police at a crime scene or hospital. In Ohio, donations are no longer automatic for crime victims who have kidney transplants or are receiving kidney medications because to buy things in their system. Those mismatches were used to delay aid for a child nail victim in the 2019 crash shooting in Dayton. But where there are more kids and 17 and 18 wounded, Dena Green was not a Needy. But that night, Martinez, 41, and her children, including her 4-year-old son, were shot in a drive-by shooting.

Dena Green recently helped a woman who haduent her children to gun violence start the compensation process by contacting a county representatives. Martinez was initially turned away because the victim had a felony record, but Green helped her inform the official of the 2019 law change.

Vera Martinez was denied victim compensation due to unusual court fees from several unrelated incidents. Martinez was shot in the chest while shielding her three young children from gun violence.

Bernice Ringo wipes her eye during an interview March 28 in Detroit. Ringo had plans to move to Alabama with her son to get him away from the crime she had feared most of his life. Those plans shattered in 2019, when Martinez was fatal shot while sitting in his parked car.

Vanessa Martinez helps her daughter, Lamesa Wilford, 5, put on shoes before they left for day care on March 20 in Chandler, Arizona. Marti-

Vanessa Martinez helps her daughter, Lamesa Wilford, 5, put on shoes before they left for day care on March 20 in Chandler, Arizona. Marti-

Vanessa Martinez helps her daughter, Lamesa Wilford, 5, put on shoes before they left for day care on March 20 in Chandler, Arizona. Marti-

Vanessa Martinez was denied victim compensation due to unusual court fees from several unrelated incidents. Martinez was shot in the chest while shielding her three young children from gun violence.

Bernice Ringo looks through photographs of her son Natalian on March 28 in Detroit. Ringo’s testimony about her experience helped push Michigan lawmakers to increase eligibility and money available to victims.

Bernice Ringo looks through photographs of her son Natalian on March 28 in Detroit. Ringo’s testimony about her experience helped push Michigan lawmakers to increase eligibility and money available to victims.

Bernice Ringo looks through photographs of her son Natalian on March 28 in Detroit. Ringo’s testimony about her experience helped push Michigan lawmakers to increase eligibility and money available to victims.

Bernice Ringo looks through photographs of her son Natalian on March 28 in Detroit. Ringo’s testimony about her experience helped push Michigan lawmakers to increase eligibility and money available to victims.

Bernice Ringo looks through photographs of her son Natalian on March 28 in Detroit. Ringo’s testimony about her experience helped push Michigan lawmakers to increase eligibility and money available to victims.

Bernice Ringo looks through photographs of her son Natalian on March 28 in Detroit. Ringo’s testimony about her experience helped push Michigan lawmakers to increase eligibility and money available to victims.

Bernice Ringo looks through photographs of her son Natalian on March 28 in Detroit. Ringo’s testimony about her experience helped push Michigan lawmakers to increase eligibility and money available to victims.

Bernice Ringo looks through photographs of her son Natalian on March 28 in Detroit. Ringo’s testimony about her experience helped push Michigan lawmakers to increase eligibility and money available to victims.

Bernice Ringo looks through photographs of her son Natalian on March 28 in Detroit. Ringo’s testimony about her experience helped push Michigan lawmakers to increase eligibility and money available to victims.

Bernice Ringo looks through photographs of her son Natalian on March 28 in Detroit. Ringo’s testimony about her experience helped push Michigan lawmakers to increase eligibility and money available to victims.

Bernice Ringo looks through photographs of her son Natalian on March 28 in Detroit. Ringo’s testimony about her experience helped push Michigan lawmakers to increase eligibility and money available to victims.

Bernice Ringo looks through photographs of her son Natalian on March 28 in Detroit. Ringo’s testimony about her experience helped push Michigan lawmakers to increase eligibility and money available to victims.

Bernice Ringo looks through photographs of her son Natalian on March 28 in Detroit. Ringo’s testimony about her experience helped push Michigan lawmakers to increase eligibility and money available to victims.

Bernice Ringo looks through photographs of her son Natalian on March 28 in Detroit. Ringo’s testimony about her experience helped push Michigan lawmakers to increase eligibility and money available to victims.

Bernice Ringo looks through photographs of her son Natalian on March 28 in Detroit. Ringo’s testimony about her experience helped push Michigan lawmakers to increase eligibility and money available to victims.

Bernice Ringo looks through photographs of her son Natalian on March 28 in Detroit. Ringo’s testimony about her experience helped push Michigan lawmakers to increase eligibility and money available to victims.